

Committee session CULT Pt. 1 (11:45 - 12:30)

Basic Information:

Topic: Prevention of child dropouts, improvements of literacy skills, and ways to improve literacy skills, and increase participation in upper secondary and adult education.

Chair: Oliver Barham (Le Verseau)

Co-Chairs: Solveig Ahorner, Jana Wolf (Burggymnasium)

Members: 34 (hopefully)

Starting time was not regarded as important by the Chair (Fail)

Technical problems lead to massive delay of starting the discussion

Manual attendance check means more delay

Starting off with S&D, Main Submitter presents their resolution to make a social, stable education system.

Good start and showing knowledge of the party's position, coherent presentation

Addresses at the moral issue of education and encourages all parties to vote for it

Same goes for EPP, which funnily enough is for the S&D CP, but of course with their own interests added — Encourage unity (not very credible)

Liberal party starts by "begging for amendments" to expand the system by several more liberal points

Committee session CULT Pt. 2 (14:00-17:00)

40 minutes debate time on CP, starting with S&D

Due to time shortage, extreme, minutious planning of discussion parts

Incredible unity concerning the CP

All amendments discussed up to this point did pass with 100% pro votes

After about an hour it seems as if the CP of the GREENS/S&D is that worked out, that the opposition does not have any striking amendments to discuss

Many delegates do not actually represent their party's view

Some interesting approaches on the problem:

List of Blogs to get published in schools as a central research source for pupils to make them aware of the importance of education (failed :))
